ing:

The Dayton Fire Department is making preparations for a grand parade on the afternoon of Thanksgiving day. This is rasher a novel way of observing a religious festival, but as the different companies contemplate attending Divitioe service in the morning, either in their own balls or at some of the churches, the after noon parade will not be any more inappropriate than big fansy dinners, and keeping stores open on that day, for the sake of "filthy lucre." Besides, as firemen, they have special cause for thankfulness—for the great scarcity of fires during the last year, for their immunity from sick ness; for the peace and harmony which prevails among the different companies; and for the moral and intellectual progress which they have made within the past twelve months.

It will come off at Nizon's Hall, on townstrow (Toesday) evening without fail. The public is invited. Ticksta, admitting a gentleman and lady, 50 cents.

A writer in the Journal of this morning appresses his astonishment that the Firemen of particular processes his astonishment that the Firemen of particu he following reply, on Saturday afternoon:

The latter part of the paragraph is not clear and if we can understand any thing of its means ing it is that the firemen have more cause for thankfulness than any other class of community, and therefore are more sepecially bound to observe, religiously, a "religious festival," than other citizens; that they should attend tation of thank fulness outside of a church.

We have no nacharitable feeling toward any body. We desire all to sujoy themselves on Thanksgiving Day as seemeth them good, in the bounds of propriety. We reproduce, in conclusion, the latter part of our article of Saturday, as about what we conceive would be proper on that days
